Manhattan office leasing jumped 54% in a month.

Availability fell to 12.3%, the tightest since August 2020. 2026 is on pace for the busiest year since 2000.

Recovering, or being sorted?

Gabriele Maffezzini
Project & Development, EMEA

Source: Manhattan leasing data via Commercial Observer, 2 Nov 2026

Fewer offices. Fuller offices.

Demand is coming back to a smaller, better stock.

+54%
Manhattan leasing in October vs September

12.3%
Manhattan availability, lowest since 2020

-42.5m sq ft
US office inventory in six quarters

~1/5
of the usual new supply delivered in 2026

Gabriele Maffezzini
Project & Development, EMEA

Sources: Commercial Observer, 2 Nov 2026; Cushman & Wakefield, U.S. Office MarketBeat Q3 2026

Obsolete stock is leaving the market.

42.5m sq ft

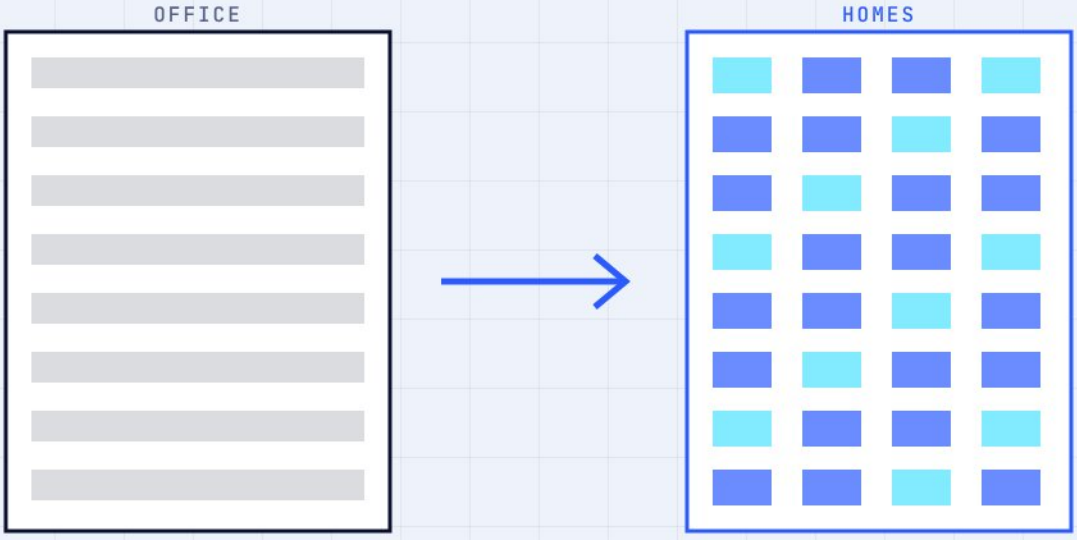

removed from US office inventory in six quarters

Gabriele Maffezzini
Project & Development, EMEA

Source: Cushman & Wakefield, U.S. Office MarketBeat Q3 2026

Yesterday's offices, tomorrow's homes.

13
Manhattan conversion projects

11,000+
apartments from 7m sq ft of offices

Gabriele Maffezzini
Project & Development, EMEA

Source: The Real Deal, 8 Nov 2026

Almost nothing new. Everything gets fitted out.

Delivered, Jan-Sep 2026 ~1/5

Historical average 100%

7.1m sq ft
new US office space in nine months

$90+
per sq ft fit-out allowances in Manhattan, a record

Gabriele Maffezzini
Project & Development, EMEA

Sources: Cushman & Wakefield, U.S. Office MarketBeat Q3 2026; The Real Deal, 8 Nov 2026

The market is not full. It is selective.

Fewer
obsolete stock leaves

Converted
second lives as homes

Fitted out
the race for quality

Is your city sorting its offices the same way?

Tell me what you see.

Gabriele Maffezzini
Project & Development, EMEA